Source effectively

Your business performance depends on product quality, price, differentiation, and availability. Therefore, sourcing the right product at the best price is vital to attaining improved sales, higher profit margins, and excellent service across your supply chain.

Sell profitably

Sometimes, there's no need to create or add new products. Instead, businesses can sell more products to customers by opening more routes to market. And by selling through multiple at once, you can take advantage of new and massive business opportunities.

Stock efficiently

Maintaining optimal stock levels can reduce handling costs and ensure economical transportation. However, such efficiency is only possible with software that helps you manage your inventory with clear visibility of supply and demand levels.

Service competitively

Competition for the same customers is tough, so you must differentiate, and that can't always be through price. To stand out, you need to deliver quality products on time, together with outstanding customer service. All of that and more is possible with our ERP systems.

One integrated solution for your business

Innovative, flexible supply channels are essential for wholesale distribution companies looking for a sustainable future in today's dynamic market. Klipboard can support your business through a wide selection of inclusive software modules. Each module integrates seamlessly with the others, enabling you to control every aspect of your business - from finance and trading, to logistics and management.

Scalable

Adopted globally by a wide range of wholesale distribution businesses, Klipboard's scalable ERP solution is designed to help your business grow. Whether you are operating your business from a single site or have an expanding company with several distribution centres, a network of showrooms and an online trading platform, Klipboard allows you to thrive.

Flexible

Manage your business your way. Choose the ERP modules that are most beneficial to your operations, as well as how the system and dashboards are set up, and permissions. Configure everything the way you need it for your business within Klipboard.
